County easement requests irk Fire Tower residents

By BRENT MACEY
Attempts by members of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors to acquire land easements from residents living along Fire Tower Road have been met by opposition.

Many residents along the 6.6 miles of dirt road extending from Hwy. 803 to Harrison County in the northern part of this county do not feel they should give free land to the county just to the road can be paved and widened for drainage.

"I don't think I should give my land to anybody," Welton Linder, a resident along the road said about the county's request that he donate three quarters of an acre.

"Nobody gave me anything," he added.

Linder and several others who do not want to give their land plan to take the issue to court. Linder has already hired an attorney.

"I'm not saying I won't give my land, but I don't like the way I was approached," Cuevas added.

Cuevas said James Travira, Beat Five supervisor, came to his house with the papers ready to be signed which would grant the easement.

"He told me I should be paying him since the improvements are going to increase the value of my property," Cuevas said.

"I told him I don't care how much my property is going to improve. I'm not interested in selling my land and I'm not going to," he added.

Linder responded in a similar manner when told his land would be improved from the road paving.

Along most of the road, project engineers have driven stakes marking the area designated as the easement needed by the county.

The markers show the road is to be widened some 25 feet into Cuevas' front yard and another 25 feet into a field he owns across from his house.

A fence running some quarter mile on Cuevas' property is within the easement area and Cuevas said the fence would have to be torn down.

"They never even offered to put my fence back up. In fact they never offered one penny for anything. He (Travira) just wanted me to sign."

Linder noted he has a number of oak

Bay store clerk charged with marijuana sale

By ELLIS CUEVAS
The clerk of a US-90 Bay St. Louis convenience store was arrested Friday night for the alleged sale of marijuana.

According to Hancock Investigator Alvin Linder.

The investigator said, "Leonard J. Mahan, 49, General Delivery, Pearlman, was arrested at the 11 General Food Store, US-90 and De Montfaucon Avenue Friday night for selling six bags of marijuana at the store to deputies of the sheriff's office."

Mahan's bond was set at $5,000 and is scheduled to appear before Justice of the Peace Judge John Chevis for a preliminary hearing Jan. 27.

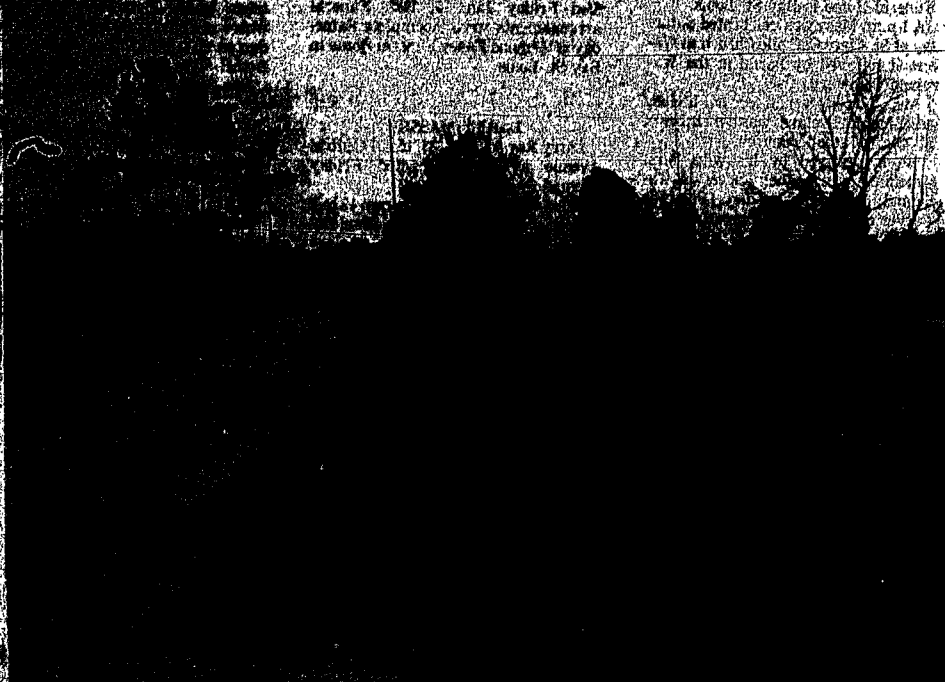

Assisting Linder in the arrest were Bay St. Louis Investigator Mark Kavanagh and Hancock Auxiliary Deputy David Murtagh.

In other police activities Friday night, Hancock County Sheriff R. H. Peterson reported four persons were arrested for selling rabbits in the Shoreline Park area.

Peterson stated, "Capt. Paul Bernard and Deputy David Garcia were on a routine patrol on 13th Street and Avenue B when they spotted a vehicle with a Forrester County license plate with a headlight searching the road upon approaching the vehicle. The deputies noticed two rabbits on the hood and four persons inside the car."

The deputies arrested Scott T. Wheeler and Greg Wheeler, both of 3314 West 4th St., Hattiesburg; Leslie W. Miller, 1620 Aubin, Gautier; and James A. Mills, 102 City Park Circle, Hattiesburg and charged them with headlighting rabbits.

An automatic 22-caliber pistol, 12-gauge shotgun, flashlight, shells and two rabbits were confiscated by

FIRE TOWER ROAD—An easement needed to expand and pave Fire Tower Road in the northern part of Hancock County in accordance with state aid standards would require some additional 25 feet of property from the front yard of Leroy Cuevas, and an additional 25 feet of his property in a field on the other side of this road. Cuevas, like several other residents along the road, is not anxious to donate free land to the county. Many residents have refused to give their land for free and have stated they will go to court before they do. (Staff photo by Brent Macey)

Clermont water rate hike threat passes

By BRENT MACEY
The threat of a second water rate hike for Clermont Harbor residents is apparently over, at least for now.

Johnson Utility Company, owners of the water system, failed to appeal a recent Public Service Commission ruling which decided against a water rate increase for customers. John Carter, a PSC administrative assistant said Friday.

As a result, customers who have been paying for the anticipated increase can expect to receive a rebate within the next 60 days, Carter said.

Mary Cahill, Clermont Harbor Civic Association president estimated some residents may be reimbursed $10.50 plus interest over a three-month period.

On Dec. 12, the PSC ruled against allowing the company to increase rates from $8.50 per month to $12 per month per customer.

The utility company had 30 days to file an appeal in either Hinds or Hancock County Chancery Court.

HNC elementary accreditation a major 1981 accomplishment

By BRENT MACEY
Preventing schools in the Hancock County School District from losing accreditation by Southern Association of Schools and Colleges was cited by Superintendent Billy Sills as perhaps the biggest accomplishment in the school district in 1981.

Sills said he and other school officials spent six months last year working to remedy deficiencies which "almost" caused the schools to lose accreditation.

Most of the problems resulted from lack of classroom and office space in the elementary school at Hancock North Central.

Construction of the new Handicapped Center on that school campus to provide six new classrooms and more office space remedied most of those problems. But other problems also had to be solved, Sills said.

Currently all elementary schools in the district are accredited by SACS and by Mississippi Accreditation Association, he noted.

Hancock North Central High School still has not been accredited by the Southern Association, but Sills expects accreditation by that organization will be coming shortly.

He noted the high school is accredited by the Mississippi Association.

"The only thing now preventing the high school from being accredited by Southern Association is the number of books available per student in the school library."

He stated the school has eight books per student in the library but needs 10 per student to be accredited by the association.

DuPont fire under investigation

He stated the elementary school principal's office was "insufficient" as was the teacher's lounge area, reception area and secretarial office space.

Signs indicating a school zone had been posted on the school campus and a vault to store records also had to be constructed at the school.

Construction of the Handicapped Center not only allowed the district to remedy those problems but also was cited as second major accomplishment for the 1981-82 school year.

"The Handicapped Center is the most modern in the state," Sills said about the building which opened last March and provides six classrooms for educationally mentally retarded students and first grade students.

Introduction of an adult education program in the county was a third major accomplishment cited by Sills.

The superintendent noted that 57 percent of the citizens in Hancock County have not graduated from high school. The adult classes, conducted Tuesday and Thursday evenings at Hancock North Central, "will prepare anyone 17-years-old or older to take a Graduate Education Development exam," Sills said.

"Passing the exam enables that person to have the equivalent of a high school degree," he noted.

The exact number of adults who have taken the course and completed the exam were not readily available since the test is conducted at Pearl River Junior College.

Sills estimated between 50 and 60 adults of the 176 people who have registered for the course have passed the GED exam.

He noted the course is free for the public, including supplies, and is subsidized 90 percent by the state and federal governments.

A fourth major accomplishment for the 1980-81 school year includes the establishment of a Gifted and Talented Program for elementary students at Hancock North Central.

"We had intentions of expanding the program to the other two elementary schools in the county but the federal government cut the funds we needed," he said.

The program at North Central is funded entirely by the federal government.

Also initiated last year is a pre-school program for handicapped three, four, and five-year olds in Clermont Harbor.

That program is also funded totally by the federal government and is cited by Sills as a fifth major accomplishment for the 1981-82 school year.

Development of an in-school suspension program was listed as another accomplishment, but not a major one.

Sills said students who now are suspended remain in school, but they are isolated from the rest of their class and they do the same work in suspension class that their other classmates are doing.

Jury summons a 'joke' in Hancock County

There are far too many people who fail to take serving on jury duty as a serious matter.

One of these days, court will be held by a judge who is not 'so-fit' on no shows for jury duty.

There are many Hancock County residents who are law abiding citizens, those who feel it is a duty to serve on a jury. This is true while at the same time about a fourth just ignore jury duty.

A case in point is this past week's court in Hancock County.

A total of 48 people were impaneled, not enough to fill the normal amount of juries when 200 jury summons were sent out.

Now we know 44 had received legitimate excuses, 40 summons were returned by the post office and the judge excused 10 on opening day.

Where were the 58 who failed to make an appearance, and why isn't something done by the court to eliminate the no shows by those issued jury summons.

We are sure several of those unaccounted for probably have legitimate reasons, but for sure not everyone.

We contend that one of the reasons for so many persons ignoring jury summons is because the judges do not follow-up on the no shows the way they should. A lot of folks called feel nothing will happen to them, so what!

One of these days court will be held, or trial will be held in Hancock County and no jury will be available, unless the judges get their act together.

Efforts were made in a recent term of court on jury summons no shows in reaching the persons, but it just seemed to have died.

NEWS
GOVERNOR'S OFFICE

At least six of the more than 600 recommendations made at the recent White House Conference on Aging in Washington, D.C., could have a direct effect on how future services are administered to the elderly in Mississippi.

The national conference, which is held every ten years, allowed approximately 4,000 pre-selected delegates and observers, including 32 from Mississippi, to discuss solutions to problems confronting the elderly in the United States.

Recommendations of two previous White House conferences, held in 1961 and 1971, resulted in actions by national, state and local officials to devise laws and programs that address the needs of older Americans.

According to state Council on Aging Executive Director Jay C. Moon recommendations dealing with transportation, employment, tax incentives for families who care for persons in the home, tax credits for volunteers, maintenance of Social Security at the current level, and the reauthorization of the Older Americans Act combine as the gateway to all of the services discussed at the 1981 conference.

It is obvious that every recommendation made at the conference will affect Mississippi's services to the elderly in one way or another, but none will have as great an impact as these six areas, said Moon. "They all complement each other in some way and are vital in serving the older persons of our state."

The first recommendation dealing with transportation called for current programs and funding to be continued and expanded. Federal funds are currently used in every state to operate time and full-time employment. This would require continued funding for employment programs and expanded efforts to involve the private sector as employers.

Statistics indicate that there are more people who are able to work living past the age of 65 than ever before. By continuing to work, older persons don't draw Social Security as early and remain active in their communities longer, said Moon.

The third recommendation called for tax incentives for families who care for persons in their home.

In the past individuals have resorted to placing older members of their families in nursing homes because of the high costs associated with keeping them in their own homes. Such actions have caused operating costs to the state to skyrocket in recent years, however, with approximately 90 percent of nursing home expenditures being paid by Medicaid.

A tax credit for families agreeing to care for older persons in the home would reduce the cost of institutional care for the state and the individual and enhance the ability of elderly persons to maintain independence and dignity, said Moon.

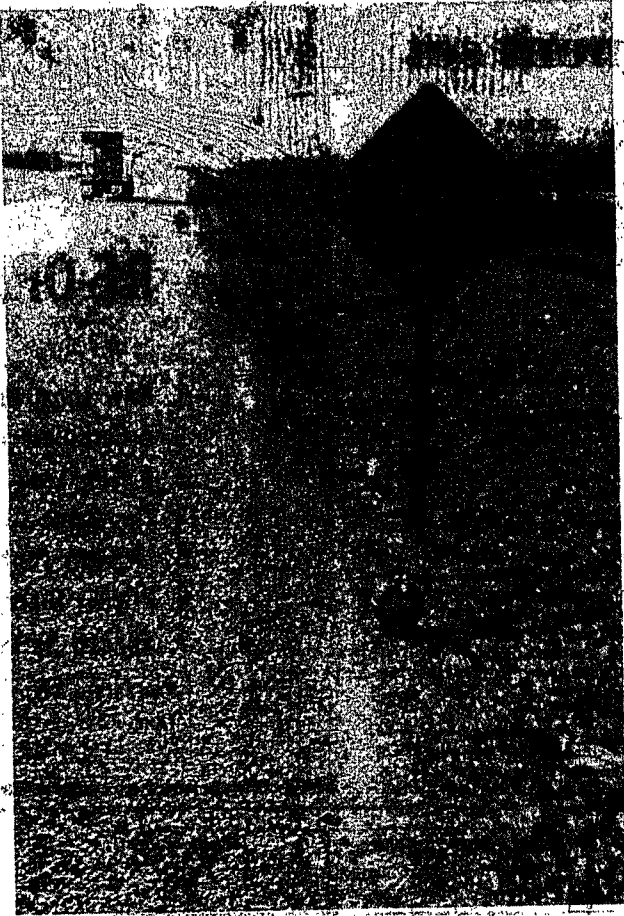

A recommendation calling for tax credits to be given to volunteers was also made at the conference.

According to Moon, several elderly individuals and groups have indicated an interest in doing volunteer work to help needy persons in the state. Inflation, however, has kept many from doing so. A tax credit would encourage older persons to volunteer their time and talents with hopes of adding to the number of elderly persons in the productive market, he said.

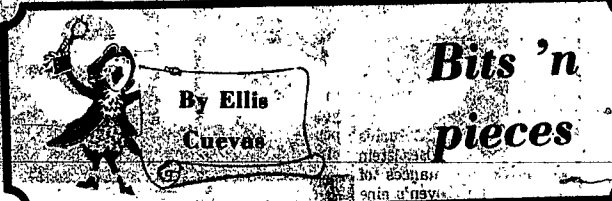

A fourth recommendation and possibly the most vocal issue at the conference called for the maintenance of Social Security at the current level of benefits for all persons.

Social Security is considered to be a major source of income for retirees in the United States. A cut in benefits would cause elderly persons to become more dependent on government assistance, said Moon. "Social Security is the backbone of the retirement system for millions of Americans," he said.

Recommendations of the White House Conference on Aging are being reviewed by the Council on Aging and the Department of Human Resources. The Council on Aging is a state agency that coordinates and promotes programs for the elderly. The Department of Human Resources is responsible for the administration of Social Security and other federal programs.

PREPARING FOR THE WORST—The Mississippi State Highway Department workers were placing "Watch for Ice on Bridge" signs on highways in Hancock County Thursday. Problems unknown to Hancock County motorists began Tuesday with ice-covered bridges bringing all traffic to a complete halt in our county. This sign is on the westbound lane of I-10 at the Jordan River where 18-wheelers stalled earlier on the bridge because of icing conditions. All motorists are urged to drive carefully with these dangerous conditions in our county. (Staff photo by Wayne Douthett)

The prime topic of conversation this week has been the weather, even with the grand jury in session.

Schools have been closed for several days much to the displeasure of many parents. The school administrations are correct in closing down because of the extreme weather conditions.

We have been very fortunate inasmuch as we have had very little interruption of electrical power and gas services.

The two things we fear is a power or gas failure, or worse for both utilities to go down at once.

Many people of the nation are suffering with extreme cold weather and lacking power and gas supplies.

The long-range forecast on the weather indicates we will have more severe cold today and tonight, and we hope it is not as bad as it was Monday when it dropped to eight degrees here.

We, like many others complained of the hot and dry weather not too many weeks ago and now many of us wish the hot and dry weather was back.

We are looking forward to spring.

While on the subject of the weather, we know there are many broken water pipes in Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

The broken pipes are one of the main reasons for dangerously low water pressures.

Many homes are unoccupied and we hope citizens will report any broken water lines to the proper utility company so they can shut the water off at the meter.

A popular practice for many residents is to turn their water on when the cold weather arrives. This also lowers water pressures.

Homes constructed on slabs with pipes in the slab usually do not freeze like those built on blocks.

Plumbers have been very busy fixing the many broken pipes of course they are unable to fix them all at once.

We will remember the hard freeze 20 years ago when many water pipes leaked when pipes started to thaw.

A good friend of ours spent all of one day trying to fix more than 60 breaks.

Again, we look forward to spring.

Gov. William Winter apparently used some strong words in addressing the state legislature on Thursday.

We are happy to see Gov. Winter express his concern for the revenues needed for the installation of public kindergarten in our school systems.

It would be good to let our legislators know the importance of passage of the public kindergarten act and legislation.

Geraldine Lang, a local advisor on the Governor's public kindergarten and compulsory education team indicated Thursday it would be a big job for legislators to do in San Antonio and

San Antonio, Texas. The team is currently in San Antonio, Texas, for a meeting with the state legislature. The team is also in San Antonio, Texas, for a meeting with the state legislature. The team is also in San Antonio, Texas, for a meeting with the state legislature.

MEC NEWS MISSISSIPPI ECONOMIC COUNCIL

Mississippi journalists will receive an overview of the nation's economy from one of the nation's foremost experts in economic education at a special American Enterprise Center conference on January 22 in Jackson.

The day-long Media Conference on Economics will be conducted by Dr. Lucille Ford, vice president and dean of the School of Business Administration and Economics at Ashland College in Ashland, Ohio.

"This conference has been designed as a learning experience so that journalists—both print and broadcast—can better understand and report business news," said AEC President Bob Pittman.

Conference sessions will include an overview of the state of the nation's economy, a workshop on supply-side economics, and a discussion of fiscal and monetary policy—all conducted by Dr. Ford. Mississippi businessmen will discuss the effect of the nation's economy on Mississippi business.

The AEC is a program of the Mississippi Economic Council's M. B. Swayze Foundation.

"This conference is open to representatives of the state's news media and journalism students and faculty," said Pittman.

Dr. Ford has long been associated with economics and economic education and has initiated several degree-granting programs of study in economics and related fields at Ashland College.

She serves as chairman of the board of trustees and on the executive committee of the Ohio Council on Economic Education and is a member of the economic education committee of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce. She has served on the executive committee of the Ohio Association of Economists and was among the members of that association selected for a tour of Mainland China.

Dr. Ford currently serves on the board of directors of the Ohio Edison Company, the Shelby Mutual Insurance Company, and the First National Bank of Ashland.

"Dr. Ford is no stranger to the Council's American Enterprise Center of its activities," said Pittman. "She was a consultant for an AEC summer economic education workshop last July for selected elementary and secondary teachers. We are very fortunate that she will be back in Mississippi for this important workshop."

News media representatives who have assisted in planning the conference include: broadcast executive Owens Alexander of Jackson; television news director Lincoln Warren of Jackson; Crystal Springs publisher Henry Garney; Brookhaven publisher executive editor Charles Jacobs; Mc-

Comb editor Charles Durnigan, and Meridian City editor Robert Henry.

A quality public education system is of paramount importance to Mississippi's future. Improvements in the state's education system must begin at the highest level of administration—with revision of the State Board of Education—according to the Mississippi Economic Council.

"Education is a major key to economic advancement," said MEC Chairman W.W. Gresham Jr. "But Mississippi's State Board of Education has not changed since the state's public school system was established."

"The Indiana businessman explained that Mississippi's State Board of Education is composed of three ex-officio members—the State Superintendent of Education, the Attorney General, and the Secretary of State. Presently, only Mississippi and Florida have ex-officio boards."

"The State Board of Education is responsible for policies, rules, regulations, and minimum standards relating to schools. It is also responsible for management of public school funds," said Gresham.

"But, there is a question as to whether an ex-officio board of only three members—two of whom have full-time responsibilities in other state offices—can effectively administer a public education system which involves more than a half million children and expenses of almost $655 million."

MEC recommends that the state establish an expanded, lay board.

Appointments to the board should be made by the Governor from a select list of nominees, with consent of the Senate. Terms should be staggered to prevent selection of a majority of the board during any four-year period.

"The Council is not the only organization which has called for revision of the State Board of Education," said Gresham. "Various other groups have made the same recommendation."

Study groups making the same recommendation include:

—The Citizens Council on Education recommended an expanded, lay board as early as 1950.

—The Legislative Education Study Committee in 1963 recommended a state agency for education, comprised of a lay board and a professional staff.

—A report by the independent consultant firm of Boor-Allen and Hamilton in the mid-1980s advised the Legislature that the rapid growth of elementary and secondary education requires the attention of an enlarged, lay state Board of Education.

—Governor William Winter's Committee on Education, Finance, and Administration concluded in 1980 that an expanded, lay board of education was one of the major changes needed for improving the quality of public education in the state.

The peoples business

THE INDIVIDUAL
During the Great Depression a continuing debate began among lawmakers about the need for some form of national economic planning in order to achieve commonly shared long-range goals.

This concept runs counter to the principles of free enterprise in which America was founded, and a recent national survey reveals grassroots opposition to government controls on free enterprise.

Results of the survey showed that 72 percent of all Americans think the government is engaging in activities that are best left to the private sector and a threat to basic economic liberties.

From this survey, it seems that Americans are again recognizing some of the basic principles set forth in Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations."

In his 1776 publication, Smith said that the attainment of socially desirable goals is best achieved not through centralized economic planning, but rather through planning by each individual using the detailed knowledge of his particular situation, with the separate plans of all individuals coordinated by the impersonal discipline of prices determined in the marketplace.

Smith argues that government administrators cannot possibly possess the detailed information necessary in order to plan the economic activities of individuals. "The law ought always to trust people with the care of their own interest, as in their local situations they must generally be able to judge better of it than the legislator can do."

In Mississippi, the Mississippi Economic Council's American Enterprise Center is working toward restoring and preserving the system created by the country's founding fathers.

The AEC, now in its third year of operation, is working toward the goal of a better understanding and appreciation of the American enterprise system through economic education workshops for teachers, free enterprise youth conferences, employee economic education workshops, and an extensive economic education library in Jackson.

Shuttle astronauts visit NSTL

Astronauts Joe Engle and Richard Truly, the crew of the second Space Shuttle flight, visited the National Space Technology Laboratories recently to personally thank employees for their contributions to the successful mission. The astronauts told the employees, which included Rockwell Rocketdyne, Computer Science Corp., Pan Am, Marshall Space Flight Center and NSTL civil servants, to "keep up the good work" in supporting future shuttle missions.

Engle and Truly spoke to several hundred National Aeronautics and Space Administration and contractor personnel in the auditorium of NSTL's Visitors Center and narrated film and slides taken during their history-making flight Nov. 12-14.

Native Mississippian Truly, the Columbia's pilot, told employees, "To come home to the people in the space program across the country is really the fun part because we can literally say face to face to you what a super job you've done and how much we thank you for it."

Engle, who was the shuttle commander, said, "We couldn't be more sincere to a group of people anywhere when we say to you how much we appreciate the good work that you did. You had the whole country and the whole world looking at you. Those engines worked perfectly and so smoothly. We just can't thank you enough for the job that you did."

The three main engines used on both Columbia missions were certified for flight at NSTL.

Truly also acknowledged the ongoing engine test program being conducted at the installation.

"I know that for what you're doing out here right now, flight two of the Space Shuttle is old business and I don't want you to let up for a second," he said. "You're really doing important work and we're really proud of you. I guess all I can say is keep up the good work that you did for Sam and Ed and Joe and me."

Astronauts John Young and Robert Crippen, the crew of the first Columbia flight in April 1981, paid a similar post-flight visit to NSTL after their mission.

Following the astronauts' briefings to employees, Jerry Hlass, NSTL manager, presented to Engle and Truly plaques featuring pictures of a single engine and a main propulsion system firing.

They then presented an American flag and STS-2 crew patch flown during the mission to Hlass, who accepted on behalf of all NSTL employees. Engle made the presentation "in sincere and deep appreciation for the efforts that you made and the success that we had with your engines on our flight."

BROKEN PIPES—Bay St. Louis Utility Department crewmen Jesse Galloway, right, turns water off at meter of an Easterbrook Street residence as Chip Prevou holds watermeter cover. Utility crews in both Bay St. Louis and Waveland have been busy turning off water to consumers with broken pipes from recent freezes. Many of the homes are unoccupied and breaks have been reported by neighbors, police or found by utility repairmen as they make their rounds. Eight-degree temperatures recently broke many pipes under floor joists of many local homes. (Staff photo by Ellis Cuevas)

ETV Brief

VIENNA PHILHARMONIC—"Bernstein-Beethoven" an 11-part weekly series featuring Leonard Bernstein conducting performances of Ludwig van Beethoven's nine symphonies, the "Missa Solemnis" and several of his other works, can be seen at 4 p.m. Mondays, beginning January 25, on the Mississippi ETV Network.

The programs in the series were filmed in Vienna's Musikverein with the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra and to Amsterdam's Concertgebouw with the "Concertgebouw Orchestra of Amsterdam."

In his introduction to the series, Bernstein, who pioneered the presentation of classical music on television with his historic "Omnibus" programs, says, "This series is not an academic course, nor is it intended to be primarily an educational project. It is meant for your delight in art; your deepest emotional response to truly great music. I offer it to all music-loving ears as a testament of faith and of my most profound reactions to this greatest of all composers."

Family could survive emergency on produce from home garden

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is one of the last submitted by S. Grady Thigpen, long-time contributor to the Sea Coast Echo who died, Christmas Eve.

By S. GRADY THIGPEN
Every home where I lived and grew up 60 years ago had a vegetable garden that furnished a big part of the food for the family. There were few grocery stores back then and each family had to provide most of its own food.

My mother saw to it that her garden was planted early. The first planting was killed by frost, she promptly planted again.

Snap beans were planted on several rows in this old time garden.

The pole beans were planted in at least one row.

Two or three rows of the bunch beans were planted. In order to have beans longer there were two or three plantings about 2 or 3 weeks apart.

Enough snap beans were planted each year so that we could have this tasty dish as often as wanted, and enough more were planted so that we could have the shell beans from the surplus. They were excellent food.

Butter beans were most important in this old garden. Two or three rows would be planted in at least two varieties. Butter beans produced more than anything else in the garden.

If they were picked as they matured, they would keep blooming and bearing for a considerable time.

Butter beans were my favorite of all the vegetables. Like the others, if they were picked and "hulled" on the morning in which they were cooked they were always fresh and crammed with vitamins. I suggest you eat butter beans or any other garden crop fresh from the garden, and then eat some that have been harvested for some time, even 24 hours, and you can readily see the difference.

No beans were ever thrown away. What was not eaten when picked green were picked after they dried. They would keep indefinitely and were wonderful food in the winter months.

In our garden on the old farm there was always at least one row of onions and one row of leeks. They were eaten raw and eaten cooked. The favorite salad of mine today is a green salad with at least two good healthy slices of onion.

At our house onions were used a number of ways.

A few rows of crowder peas were planted in our garden, usually two or three varieties to come off at different times.

Squash were always planted and cooked in various ways. We always had cucumbers, a row of beets and a row or two of okra, a row of tomatoes and cabbage.

That garden spot was the busiest place on the farm. It is surprising the amount of food that can be grown on a small plot of land when it is well prepared, well fertilized and well cared for. Cabbage, potatoes and peanuts were planted in the field.

It is distressing to me to go around over the countryside and see so few vegetable gardens. A good, well cared for vegetable garden will save much money in these days when groceries are so high, but more important, food fresh from the garden is more healthful, more nutritious and loaded with vitamins.

Another thing, a good vegetable garden is a means of insuring that the family will always have good food and in these times of strikes and turmoil, a good garden could be what would keep many people from suffering for want of food.

There are about 6,000 families in Pearl River County. A good garden can be had by almost everyone, as one can be had on even a town lot.

If there could be an average of even $50 of garden produce grown per family that would mean an added income to the people of the county of $300,000 and an average of $100 would mean over a half million dollars.

In case of necessity, a family could survive on the production of vegetables and other home grown foods in this area where year round food crops can be grown.

A campaign for home gardens would be a fine project for any community, any county, or for the whole state. Where not room for them, lettuce, parsley, carrots and other foods can be planted as attractive borders on lawns.

One lady told me, "We made our lawn pay by planting decorative vegetables on and around our lawn. They made the town look better too."

At my home here in Piquette, we have always grown some vegetables each year for many years.

Also, fig trees and pecan trees produce real well. Right now we have vegetables growing in our yard.

LAUREL WREATH AWARD. Donald Sutter, right, chairman of the board of Hancock Bank, was presented The Laurel Wreath Award Jan. 8 at the annual meeting of the Gulfport Area Chamber of Commerce. The award is given annually to a person who has made significant contribution to the Mississippi Coast Community. Sutter has been active in public affairs for many years. He is past president of the following organizations: the Gulfport Area Chamber of Commerce, the Gulfport Rotary Club, the Gulfport Junior Chamber of Commerce, the Metropolitan Dinner Club, and the Century Club. He was a founding member and a past commodore of Gulfport Yacht Club and a trustee of Gulf Park College. For several years he has served as a visiting professor of the school of banking at the University of Mississippi. In presenting the award to Sutter, Rob Barber, left, chairman of the board of Coast Federal Savings and Loan, a division of First Magnolia Federal Savings and Loan Association, stated Sutter's judgment and counsel through the years on important civic matters has always been wide, balanced, and sound. Inscribed on the Laurel Wreath Award is the sentence, "He brings integrity into the public realm."

Bell official explains antitrust settlement

The announcement of the settlement of the seven-year-old antitrust case will have no immediate effect on the way Mississippi South Central Bell customers deal with and receive service from the telephone company, says Frank Edmonds, the company's Mississippi senior vice president.

"To us at South Central Bell," Edmonds notes, "the most important aspect of the agreement is that it gives us an opportunity to get a firm grip on the direction in which our company is headed. We can concentrate on what we do best: providing quality telecommunications services to our customers."

Edmonds points out the decree calls for a transition period of 18 months.

"During this time there will be no difference in the way our customers do business with us," Edmonds says.

"The Consent Decree between the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and the U.S. Government will give impetus to the telephone company's role in bringing in telecommunications services to the people in Mississippi," Edmonds feels.

The action, which ends a seven-year-old antitrust case, calls for American Telephone and Telegraph to divest itself of local service facilities in the 22 Bell operating companies, including South Central Bell.

"This means South Central Bell's relationship with the Bell System will be broken," Edmonds states.

"It is not a break that we would have chosen, but it does not change our mission which is to respond to public policy," he adds, "not set it."

Local service facilities are used by customers in completing local calls and gaining access to the long distance network. Long distance service would be the responsibility of AT&T, as would termination services provided by the Bell System.

Edmonds points out that most of AT&T's three million share owners, including 107,000 in South Central Bell's five-state territory, are individuals with modest holdings.

"In addition to their AT&T stock, they will receive proportionate shares in each of the 22 operating telephone companies," he says.

Local exchange facilities, he noted, represent about two-thirds of the existing assets of the Bell System.

"Ultimately some of our present employees could be working for AT&T and some present AT&T employees could be working for South Central Bell," he says.

"But the Consent Decree specifically notes that there will be no changes in benefits, including pensions, for any active or retired South Central Bell employee. Also, the Decree will not alter any existing bargaining agreements covering our employees," he concludes.

The Kelly Lynn Figure Salon in the Chiswick Shopping Centre in Weymouth is participating in a "Pennies Per Pound" promotion to benefit the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

Beginning this month and continuing through March 31, salon patrons will be encouraged to donate one cent for every pound lost since their last visit.

During the three month event, special promotions such as Dream Days (losses of one pound every pound lost for 30 cents), Double Days (two cents per pound), will be held.

Some 32 Kelly Lynn Figure Salons in a seven-state area are involved in the program which will raise funds for the patient services and research programs of the Muscular Dystrophy Association.

MDA supports over 250 patient clinics and 10 research facilities throughout the country, in addition to its comprehensive patient care program which provides a home orthopedic equipment, diagnostic evaluations and recreational activities serving individuals afflicted with neuromuscular disorders.

BASKETS TO NEEDY!—the Hancock County Branch of the NAACP distributed more than 45 baskets to needy and elderly families during the Christmas holidays. Among those who worked on the program are, from left, Mrs. Given Johnson, Miss Mary Clarke and Miss Clementine Williams. Baskets were delivered to the Kila-Catahoola area by James Waldbour; to Pearlington area by Mrs. Ruth Fulton and daughter; in the Waveland area by Rev. and Mrs. Lee Edward Morris and in the Bay St. Louis area by Mrs. Clark, Misses Clementine, Donna, and Noella Williams.

CUT YOUR TAXES.

One of the biggest tax breaks in years has come along, and it's waiting for you, at Hancock Bank. It's the Individual Retirement Account—and it just may be the only real weapon you have to beat back inflation and save for your retirement.

Cut your taxes two ways. IRAs have been around for a while now, but effective January 1st, sweeping new changes make them more attractive than ever.

With the new rules, now anyone with earned income can open an IRA, whether already covered by a pension plan or not. And the annual maximums you can contribute to an IRA have changed, too. Beginning in January individuals can contribute up to $2,000 (up to $2,250 for yourself and non-working spouse). And if you both work, the ceiling goes up to $4,000.

Here's the best part. The full amount you contribute each year to your IRA is tax-deductible. And all the money in your IRA, including interest, is tax-deferred until you begin withdrawing it, when you'll likely be in a lower tax bracket.

Tax-deferred savings grow faster.

The money that stays in your IRA account that would have gone to taxes makes a dramatic difference in how your nest egg grows. For example, if you deposited $2,000 every year to your IRA for the next 30 years, that $60,000 will balloon to over $380,000, based on a conservative 10% annual compounded return.

Get the facts. To find out how to get in on this monumental tax break, stop by any Hancock Bank office. We'll show you how to cut your taxes the rest of your life, with the tax-cut of a lifetime.

*Federal regulations require a substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal of funds from an IRA. Also, the Internal Revenue Service imposes a 10% penalty on the amount withdrawn, and the amount withdrawn must be included in taxable income.
